2020
BRCC PRESIDENT
ALLAN KETTLEHUT

What can I say? What a crazy time. I will visit Spring Creek BBQ and find out how many people can safely use their private room at one time. But, the real question is how many of you would come if we had a club meeting there? Please email your feelings about future meetings. This is very important to the future of our club. Do it ASAP while you're thinking about it.

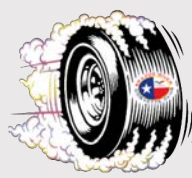

The City of Granbury has cancelled all the normal activities tied to Memorial Day and 4th of July.

Starting in June we will have Saturday Drives again. Several groups of our members have gone on cruises in April and May. Two or three cars going out and enjoying their Vettes. Instead of long range planning for these drives, expect the announcement to come out the week before the drive. Things are changing so fast that it just makes sense to be as flexible as possible.

Wishing all of you the best in these strange times.
Cheers

Cheers and keep driving.

Only a man with a heart of stone could withstand temptation like this!

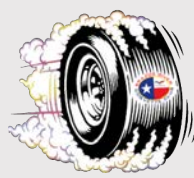

The new Corvette Sting Ray is about all the car a red-blooded American-male enthusiast could ask for. The aerodynamically efficient Sting Ray styling comes in a two-seater sport coupe and a convertible. Both have electrically operated retractable headlamps and new interiors with beautifully businesslike instrumentation that'll break your heart. But take a look underneath! A new chassis design that's shorter, with more torsional rigidity, puts engine and driver farther back and results in a rearward weight bias for better handling, greater stability. Link-type independent rear suspension keeps rear wheel camber nearly constant from bounce to rebound to get all that power on the ground. It has 18% larger self-adjusting brakes. It has new Ball-Race steering with a hydraulic shock absorber built into the linkage, a built-in provision for quickening the steering ratio, and an adjustable steering column. The exciting new Corvette Sting Ray is a 100% improvement over the old Corvette, and we're pretty sure everybody remembers how good that was! . . . Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit 2, Mich.

Each year our BRCC has sponsored 2 Field of Flags for Memorial day week.

The C8's debut model year will not be cut short by COVID-19 after all, with the start of the 2021 model year reportedly pushed back instead

by JIL MCINTOSH | MAY 25, 2020

The Corvette C8 is expected to go back into production tomorrow, May 26, at GM's plant in Bowling Green, Kentucky — and it looks like it will still make 2020 models for now.

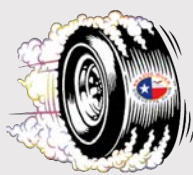

The first production 2020 Corvette C8 rolled off the line February 3, 2020, but the plant closed on March 20 due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Kentucky's governor eased restrictions to allow some businesses to open on May 11, and General Motors announced the May 26 restart date for the Bowling Green plant.

That left enthusiasts wondering if GM would continue through with 2020 Corvettes, or simply switch up to the 2021 model. But Autoblog reports that a GM rep confirmed the plant “will continue to build 2020 Corvette Stingrays when the plant resumes production.”
ble version on July 20.

Bowling Green doesn't make everything for the Corvette — the chassis are built at a factory in Bedford, Indiana. According to the New York Times, that plant slowed down but never stopped completely, building enough components so that Bowling Green could open on schedule. The Bedford factory ran three shifts but with only 20 workers per shift, down from the 250 people who normally work on the line. All volunteered for the shifts and were paid their regular wages.

Prior to the shutdown, the plant had added a second shift in preparation for the new model, boosting employment from 900 to 1,400 workers.

If Bowling Green does start up with the 2020 model year, rather than the 2021, it will cut into the exclusivity bragging rights of those who have already received their new cars. From the first one in February to the shutdown in March, only about 2,700 cars were built. Had Chevy stopped there, the 2020 model would have been the third-rarest Corvette ever, undercut only by the 300 cars built in 1953, the Corvette's first year; and the 700 made in 1955.
